NATURE-STUDY LESSONS (CLASSIC REPRINT) (PAPERBACK)

Forgotten Books, United States, 2015. Paperback. Book Condition: New. 229 x 152 mm. Language: English . Brand New Book ***** Print on Demand *****.Excerpt from Nature-Study Lessons All the world is newer and stranger to the young child than America was to Christopher Columbus when he first set foot upon it. The child acquires knowledge by what he is told and later by what he reads, but the first knowledge, and, indeed, most of the knowledge he receives in his earliest years, is, and must be, acquired by the use of his own powers. A truth discovered by the child s own effort or experience is as useful as if learned by hearsay; but in many cases the mental power and disposition developed through the efforts put forth by the child in search of a truth are more useful to him than the truth itself. Hence, usually the child who acquires useful knowledge by means of his self-activity is more than twice blessed as compared with the one who gets the same knowledge secondhand. Natures Method of Teaching. - Think how much a child learns by this natural method before he is old enough to go to school. In the school-room, the very place devoted to learning, should wise Natures favorite method of teaching be neglected or forgotten? This misfortune has happened when the child has formed the habit of depending almost entirely on the teacher or on the book to tell him what he does not know. He is not unlike a jug set before a fountain to be filled. He feels that his memory bears the chief responsibility for his education; he loses the disposition, if not the power, to find out things by his own efforts. Cramming not Education. - Observe an intelligent farmer feeding his stock....
